The £5.1m regeneration project, expected to add £1.2m a year to the local economy and support around 33 jobs, created through Cornwall's first ever interactive planning and design 'charette'. The 'charette' - a series of intense collaboration events with residents and businesses - helped co-design the vision for the future of the cattle market site.

testimonial:

"Great to see a loyal contractor consistently supporting our products on projects like this. With the services being exposed it is vital that you align a quality product with a quality installation, which is what has happened here.."

With the all M&E services being exposed throughout, the pressure is on our engineers and specialist subcontractors to undertake a neat installation, which (as usual) they have, but this also means that we must use products of high quality and ones that we trust. We use Atkore's products often, so had full confidence in the quality of the products! I was particularly impressed with our installation and the at the Liskeard Cattle Market project.
